

the truth behind

working with a recruiter.

human forward.

knowledge is power

Don't let common misconceptions stop you from working with a recruiter.

Common recruiting myths:

- recruiting agencies are expensive
- recruiters push you into a job
- you can find the same jobs on your own
- recruiters take part of your salary

The truth about recruiting:

- only employers pay recruiters
- they enhance your own job search
- nearly half of open positions aren't posted at all
- you'll actually make the same amount — or more

50% positions recruiters are trying to fill at any given time that aren't posted anywhere at all

☆ Pro Tip! Concerned about imposters? Here's what to expect from us:

we don't ask for your banking info during the interview

Our payroll team will only collect pertinent information via a standard W2 or W9, and only once we place you in a position with a client company.

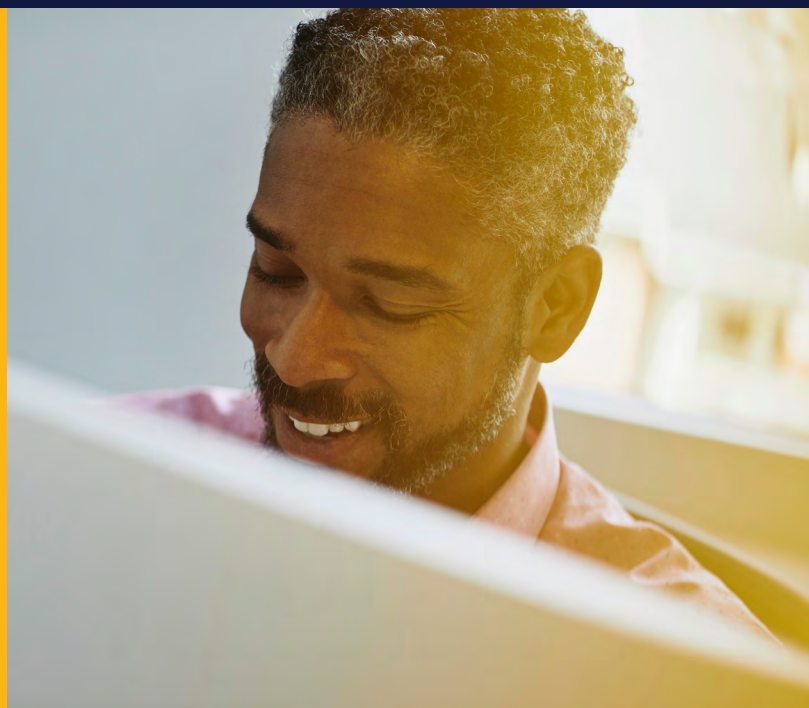

we'll only contact you through official channels

A Randstad recruiter will never reach out from a personal address or account. Any virtual connection with us will come from one of our official domain names.*

*RandstadUSA.com, Tatum-us.com, RandstadRisesmart.com, Spherion.com, Monster.com, RandstadSourceright.com

we're always careful with your personal data

We never ask you to share details like your bank account, driver's license, passport number or home address over the phone or via text or email.

there's never a fee for working with us

You will never have to pay to interview for or accept a job through Randstad or any of our corporate partners. In fact, we never collect fees from candidates at all.
